ECPAAA Mission Statement

"To provide the citizens of Eules a better understanding of the dedication and integrity of the police department"

Summer Camp is under way!!!!!! The kids and the mentors are having a great time. Thank you for your support of this worthwhile program. The campers have been swimming, bowling, skating, attended bicycle safety training and received training on Fire Safety and escape planning. Without the support of the Citizens Police Academy Alumni Association the camps would not be as successful. The next camp starts on June 21st at the Parks @ Texas Star from 9:00 – 1:00 p.m., come by and see what fun and exciting things are happening.

The CPA Class #19 graduation was a great success thanks to everyone who participated in the planning and implementation of this event. Several people of the graduating class have joined the Alumni Association and plan to become very active members in the organization. Please join me in welcoming them into the association with open arms.

Thanks to the Citizens on Patrol for the tremendous increase in the number people patrolling and the activity that you have generated. The work is being noticed please keep up the good work. We will be taking delivery of a new car from Allen Samuels Dodge in the very near future.

Thanks again for your continued support of the Eules Police Department and the Citizens of Eules.

Sincerely,
Gary

Congratulations to Linda Martin for your election to the Eules City Council

- o No matter how hard you try, you can't baptize cats.
- o When your Mom is mad at your Dad, don't let her brush your hair.
- o If your sister hits you, don't hit her back. They always catch the second person.
- o Never ask your 3-year old brother to hold a tomato.
- o You can't trust dogs to watch your food.
- o Don't sneeze when someone is cutting your hair.
- o Never hold a Dust-Buster and a cat at the same time.
- o You can't hide a piece of broccoli in a glass of milk.
- o Don't wear polka-dot underwear under white shorts.

Guest Speaker—Sgt. Ron Williamson
ECPAAA meeting, Tuesday, June 15th, 2004

Our very own Sgt. Ron Williamson from the Patrol Division will be our guest speaker Tuesday Night. His presentation is entitled, "Less Lethal Weapon." Come and learn more about the alternative weapons available for police officers.

Lou's Views

Once again Mother Nature plays with us canceling the original Class 19 graduation last Thursday evening, but we rescheduled for Friday and fun was had by all. We missed those of you who could not reschedule for a great evening of fun, food and lots of laughs. The Honorable Mayor Mary Lib Saleh was on to hand out congratulatory mementos to all of Class 19. The group also had the chance to wish Capt. Roger Mangum a happy retirement after 27 years on the force. Cpl. David Priest also retires after 20 years. Our best to those two wonderful gentlemen who gave 47 years to our City. May God Speed and many happy returns to both of them and their families.

The Executive Board met and made very few minor changes to the original budget set earlier in the year. Even with the short fall from Arbor Daze, we are able to satisfy our 2004 commitments. Notwithstanding, the 2005 budget committee will have to have some real "vision", and the fund raising committee will have a few challenges early in the year to come close to past budgets. But I have confidence the new Executive Board will continue to excel in all areas to continue to make this one of the strongest organizations in the State.

My hat is off to all of our veterans, not only in this organization, but also to all who have served our Country to keep it safe and secure for our families.

With school out and summer in full swing, please remember while on Patrol, we spend some time in the neighborhoods, ensuring our children are safe and citizens are driving responsibly. The more visible we are will cut down on speeding and care-less driving.

Thanks to Cpl. James Gordon, who took time away from his family to deliver a most professional CPR course to 12 Alumni Members. I highly recommend you set some time aside for the next scheduled class. Cpl. Gordon does an excellent job in guiding us through a very important subject that everyone should be familiar with. I am excited about our new Alumni Members from Class 19. This organization is just about to jump to the next level of excellence with the enthusiasm and commitment from our newest members. Welcome aboard to one of the strongest volunteer organizations in this City and the State. Last, but not least, thanks to my Executive Board, Committee Chairs and Past Presidents who have attended several extra meetings the past few weeks to ensure the success of our budget year.

For those of you under the weather, get well and come back to your extended family. If you need any of us, we are here for you 24/7, as we are for the Police Department and their families. Our heartfelt prayers and love go out to Sgt. Ron Williamson who lost his younger brother a few weeks ago. He also was in Law Enforcement out of State. Ron's father, who lives in the area suffered a heart attack, but is doing fine and resting at home. So the next time you see Ron, give him a big hug and tell him we really do love him and his great family.

My friends, take care of each other and I look forward to seeing you soon. Call me at any time.

Sincerely,

Lou

MY PILLS . . . Submitted by Al Simmenroth

A row of bottles on my shelf
 Caused me to analyze myself
 One yellow pill I hope to pop
 Goes to my heart so it won't stop,

A little white one that I take,
 Goes to my hands so they won't shake.

The blue ones that I use a lot,
 Tell me I'm happy when I'm not.

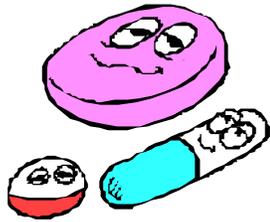

The purple goes to my brain,
 and tells me that I have no pain.

The capsules tell me not to sneeze,
 or cough, or choke or even wheeze.

The red ones, smallest of them all,
 Go to my blood so I won't fall.

The orange ones so big and bright,
 Stop my leg cramps in the night.

Such an array of brilliant pills,
 Helping to cure all kinds of ills.
 But what I'd really like to know,
 Is what tells each one where to go?

Citizens Police Academy Alumni of North Texas Update

This month's meeting was a very informative presentation on club drugs given by Tamara Keller, Forensic Chemist Drug Enforcement Administration. She provided some information on rave parties, ecstasy, ketamine, LSD, and PCP. She also showed us some beautiful pictures of her son.

CPAANT now has its very own website! It is located at <http://www.cpaant.org>. There is still some work in progress at the site. But for now there is enough to find out when and where the next meeting is (July 10 in Waco). You can also see all of the newsletters published for this year.

The state convention in Galveston will soon be here. There will be plenty of interesting presentations and fun things to do while you are there. The convention will be Aug. 22-25. Registration is $75 and is due by Aug. 1. There is a special hotel rate of $99 per night for up to 4 people. Additional information can be found at <http://www.tcpaaconvention.org>. If you would like to car pool or share a room, send an email to Louise Reynolds at BLRunnels@hotmail.com. Hope to see you there!

One of the members mentioned that many private companies would donate money to volunteer organizations for employees that put in 500 or more hours for those organizations. It doesn't hurt to ask and you just might get a nice donation from your company!

The Question of Civil Liberties . . . submitted by David Mishkin

The major democracies, although capable of fighting terrorism directly, are often hesitant to do so.

The strategies for fighting terror may be considered passive (unobtrusive) vs. active (intrusive) on Civil Liberties.

A system of passive security, for example, in which a potential target is "hardened" against attack and acts both as a deterrence to actually blunt the effects of such attack. This also involves the use of guards, watchmen, security systems and alert civilian population. In Israel, for example, much of the population are reservists in combat units and carry small arms daily. Such measures are relatively unobtrusive & have few consequences of civil liberties of the citizens.

In so vast a country as the United States, the targets of domestic or international terror are almost infinite, limited only by the imagination of the terrorists.

As was demonstrated in the bombing of the federal Building in Oklahoma City & the destruction of the Twin Towers, terrorists can strike an unlimited number of possible targets and the government has no hope of protecting them all. The complex western democracies have little choice but to adopt an active posture against terror. This means actively identifying persons and groups from which terrorists activity is likely to emerge, monitoring the activities of those who advocate violence and using preemptive surveillance, search and seizure, interrogations, detection and prosecution when it becomes apparent that planning for terrorist violence is taking place. Steeped as they are in moral and legal respect for the privacy of the individual, Western Democracies have been hesitant – justifiably so – to use methods which remind them to much of the doings of authoritarian states they so abhor. Every one of the active steps that a democratic state would take constitutes curtailment of someone's freedom to speak, assemble or practice his religion. It is these kinds of speech, assembly and religious expression which, if properly monitored, would give law enforcement agencies the warning they need in order to head off calamity.

Netanyahu maintains that the governments of free societies charged with opposing terrorism are then faced with a democratic dilemma: if they do not fight terrorism with the means available to them, they endanger their citizens; if they do, they appear to endanger the very freedoms which they are charged to protect.

In the United States such freedoms are scrupulously protected. Many claim that free speech and religious freedom are "absolute" rights. Even the most passionate advocates of civil liberties concede, along with Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Homes, that freedom of expression must stop at "shouting 'fire' in a crowded theater," American law has thus far been resistant to limiting the scope of such exceptions.

The belief that freedom of speech and religion are absolutes that cannot be compromised is tantamount to replacing one kind of violation of rights with another, even worse violation of the same rights. It is evident that terror – inflicted violations of the civil rights of a people may, if attacks are rare, be insufficient to justify serious action; but it is equally evident that there is some point at which terror becomes the bigger threat to citizen's rights & requires unflinching action.

Advocates of absolute civil liberties forget that legally protected freedoms are not ends in of themselves but are the means to ensure the health and well-being of the citizens. The United States Constitution, said Justice Robert Jackson, is not a suicide pact, when such a protected "right" in practice results in the encouragement of terrorist monstrosities ready to infuse other members of society, then it is clear that such a right has ceased to serve its true end and must be revised or reduced.

The willingness to make hard decisions in the service of democracy is a hallmark of a mature political culture. As James Madison wrote to Thomas Jefferson, "It is a melancholy reflection that liberty should be equally exposed to danger whether the government has too much or too little power." When it came to matters that endangered the security of the nation, Madison & Alexander Hamilton were unequivocal that the authority of the elective to ensure the security of the nation must take precedence over all other concerns, as they wrote in The Federalist:

...the circumstances that endanger the safety of nations are infinite and for this reason no constitutional shackles can be wisely imposed on the power to which the care of it is committed.

...I acknowledge my aversion to every project that is calculated to disarm the government of a single weapon, which in any possible contingency may be usefully employed for the general defense and security.

It is natural that a society of free citizens should shirk before a path which inevitably involves limiting the very liberties which the society is committed to protect.

Democracies should have a right and a duty to protect themselves in advance against those who would set out to destroy their societies and distinguish their freedoms.
